

Register today for the Sustainable Agriculture Conference! February 9-10, 2018

Special events on February 9th include tours of farmland conservation and urban and rural sustainable farms. Saturday, February 10th features an exciting lineup of presenters including a panel discussion with Farm Service Agency (FSA) Statewide Director Tas Smith and Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) State Conservationist Director Terrance Rudolph; Informative and demonstrative workshops led by agricultural professionals and farmers including: Savi Horne of North Carolina's Land Loss Prevention Project; Sophie Ackoff from National Young Farmer Coalition; Brennan Washington from SARE, Fort Valley State University Mobile Unit, Latimer Luck Goat Farm and many more! Additionally, the conference will host numerous vendors and exhibitors. The registration fee of $20 includes farm tours, workshops, a light breakfast, lunch and conference materials. Limited scholarships available.

Registration is now open for the conference and can be found at <http://www.athenslandtrust.org/recent/sustainable-agriculture-conference/>

For more information, please contact Briane Davis at the Athens Land Trust at 706-613-0122 .

Today's Feature: Victor Harris From the Minority Landowner Magazine!

Minority Landowner Magazine continues its national outreach to minority, limited resource, and socially disadvantaged farmers, ranchers and forest landowners. Join Mr. Harris on Saturday, February 10th in the Land Conservation & Land Equity Track to learn more about how they have designed and produced landowner engagement and training events around the country.

